"Summer Bells" is a small tree or shrub (mature height 3-8 m) Hybrid between Chilopsis linearis and Catalpa bignonioides. The leaves are oblong and narrow. Chitalpa tashkentensis 'Summer Bells' flowers profusely with orchid-like, pale pink flower with yellow throat, flowering June - August, sweetly scented. Flowering starts early in summer and lasts about 2-3 weeks. A second flowering follows in mid-August. Chitalpa grows best in full sun, in well-drained soil. Susceptible to mildew in humid weather. Attracts bees and butterflies. Chitalpa is quite rare and therefore not widely available.
